

Are You Ready for the New School Year?

www.armyonesource.com

Success in school is a goal all parents have for their children. This month, as children return to school after summer vacation, Army OneSource is focusing on education.

Educational studies show that when parents are involved, children get better grades and have more confidence in their learning skills and abilities. But sometimes parents are unsure of the best ways to become involved in their children's education and may have questions such as:

- How do we help our child develop good study habits?
- What can we do to support our child's transition to a new school?
- What do we need to know if our child has special education needs?
- How do we plan for college?

Parents may seek out a teacher, a school counselor, or an administrator to help answer these questions. Army families may also call upon the resources of their installation for assistance. If you have education-related questions, Army Community Service Center and Army OneSource consultants can provide individualized support, advocacy, and specialized services.

This month Army OneSource is featuring the CD, How to Help Your Child Succeed in School. Receive a free copy by calling a consultant or ordering online today.
